

STG-13 CARBON FILTER MONITORING

On Home units with a rotary heat exchanger, there is a risk that odors from the exhaust air are transferred to the supply air via the slats. To avoid this, a carbon filter is placed in the supply air duct that absorbs odor particles.

The amount of air through the carbon filter is measured. An alarm is given when it is time to change the filter.